On Tuesday, we went to the Department of Chemistry to watch a lecture 'Just Add Water'.

We discovered loads of amazing facts, like you can't boil an egg at the summit of Mount Everest, and that you can make a stream of water bend with static electricity from when you rub a balloon. Our favourite experiments were all the explosions. Who knew that water could explode?

In Art, we have been exploring mixed media to create land and cityscapes. We have been experimenting and using our own creativity to create our artwork.

We have had a brilliant time working on our Lego WeDo creations. We had to work in teams and each team member had a specific role. We really impressed our teachers by working together so well. We also developed our programming skills.
